

Ravina Patel, Project Manager, Ambulatory Operations – Texas Children’s Hospital

Ravina has had a passion for health care and business from an early age. After completing her Bachelor of Science in Kinesiology to become a physical therapist, Ravina realized that healthcare operations was the best way to combine her two passions. She completed her Master of Healthcare Administration at Texas Woman’s University and is now the project manager for Ambulatory Operations and primary preceptor for the graduate-level Business Operations Internship at Texas Children’s Hospital. As a former intern in Texas Children’s internship program, Ravina has a unique perspective on how to make the internship experience as meaningful as possible for candidates, and prides herself on her ability to help others gain the skills and experience necessary to launch their own careers in healthcare operations.
