

Sonia Pathirajamudali

Sonia Pathirajamudali is a second-year Master of Health Administration candidate at the University of North Texas Health Science Center at Fort Worth. With over five years of experience as a physician in Sri Lanka, Sonia transitioned to the U.S. healthcare system by initially working in a patient admissions area at Baylor Scott and White Medical Center Irving. This role provided her with valuable insights into the U.S. healthcare financial system. She furthered her experience at the same institution as a Graduate Administrative Intern during her summer internship.

Driven by a commitment to excellence, Sonia is actively pursuing an Administrative Fellowship and aspires to leverage her medical background, administrative skills, and patient service expertise to advance within the healthcare sector. She is dedicated to enhancing service delivery, improving patient experiences, and achieving better health outcomes through leadership and innovation. Sonia's clinical and practical experiences have equipped her with a comprehensive understanding of medical terminology and a unique perspective that bridges clinical and administrative functions. Her goal is to contribute meaningfully to healthcare administration by applying her skills in process improvement, operations management, and data analysis to drive positive change and impact within the community.
